THE CONFERENCE OF THE AMERICAN ZIONIST OPPOSITION

Last week a conference was held in Washington of a group of individuals interested in the Zionist situation in America, for the purpose of consolidating the opposition to the present Zionist administration in America. Among those in attendance were a number of prominent former members of the administration, including Judge Mack, a former president, as well as a delegation of Jabotinsky's Revisionist group.

At the outset the scope was limited to the discussion and criticism of the sins of the Lipsky administration and the formulation of plans for overthrowing it at the next convention. There was no pretence at offering a panacea for all the ills of the Zionist organizations at home and abroad. No new Moses's presented themselves for acclamation as deliverers of the Zionist hosts from the wilderness. With the exception of a few disgruntled former paid officials whose motives may be suspected, the people present were all sincere Zionists of standing who were really anxious to devise ways and means of improving the situation in American Zionism.

It is conceded by all observers, even those who have been acting as apologists for the present order, that the leadership in American Zionism is not as effective as it might be, and that conditions are not as satisfactory as one might wish them to be. The general opinion in the Jewish press has been, however, that the opposition has given no indication of possessing better material, or of having evolved any wiser policies or programmes than those which presently obtain. The conference has been adjudged a failure because it did not attempt any grand gestures, or bring forth any startling developments or sensational denouements.

We agree that the conference has not achieved any thrilling strokes. But why should a group of Zionists recruited from the Zionist ranks be expected to tower as heroes and supermen simply because they happen to disagree with the methods and doings of another group who compose the administration? Disagreements are natural and necessary. Why should one look for wonders from an opposition while being satisfied with commonplaces in the administration?

The Zionist administration has fallen short of the mark. In the ordinary course of events there should be an opposition critical of its deficiencies. Here we have an opposition, consisting for the most part of experienced and capable Zionists, gathering together to work out methods of rendering their opposition more effective at the coming convention.

It seems to us that the success or failure of the conference will be judged at the Zionist Convention to be held shortly in Pittsburg. An administration always has an advantage over its opposition because of its control of the machinery of the conventions. The opposition may not succeed in ousting the administration from office. But it may accomplish a great deal by forcing the administration to scrutinize its own conduct and policies, and steer a wiser course in the future in fear of the opposition's vigilance.

REFORM THE FUNERAL SERVICE

By RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

Man is a superstitious animal. Slowly the light of reason and knowledge has served to free him somewhat from superstitions. Thus instead of wearing a charm when ill, he will take some medicine. But before every crisis of life, the bars of civilization are severed, and man reverts to a more primitive type. Thus, about all important events of life a host of superstitious customs cluster, which cling with tenacity. The minister of religion, usually more emancipated and more civilized than his flock, feels the pressure of superstition whenever called to participate in functions connected with birth, marriage and death. In Jewish life these superstitions are particularly abundant, because the Jew from the ghettoes of Europe is just emerging from medievalism, and at crises in his life he insists on surrounding them with the medieval superstitions he inherited from his father and which he mistakes for religion.

Particularly is this true in connection with death ceremonies. For then man confronts the greatest of mysteries, and all the fears of his animal ancestry are revived. Jewish funerals are most harrowing. It seems as if everything is done to excite the emotions, and to pain the living. It seems as if some of our customs are like pouring salt into open wounds. Chants must be sung, which invariably send strong women into hysterics and weak ones into fainting fits. The methods of the preparation of the body, of the burial, etc., etc., seem most primitive and most barbarous to one of sensitive nature. We recall one woman who when she saw her son's body placed on the floor in accordance with tradition cried out in agony and asked whether that was Judaism. We recall one household where we pleaded for the sake of the living to eliminate one chant, but in vain. Superstition won and three women collapsed, one of them a weak old mother. We recognize that the motives behind this scrupulous observance of superstition are the kindest. The living are anxious to do everything possible for the dead.

And there is the error—the funeral services are not for the dead. They are for the living. To soothe them. To calm them. To help them bear their burden. To renew their faith. To resign them to their loss. To give them courage to live on. To help them see the beauty for which, even at death, man cannot but help and thank God. That is why we have services for the dead —to help the living. The dead are beyond our prayers and our hopes.

At funerals, therefore, we should only retain those religious practices which comfort and soothe and sustain, and eliminate those which harrow and disturb. Our superstitions do not help the dead. They must not be allowed to harm the living. Intelligent people will ban them.

Lyon Cohen Honoured at Banquet

Members of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue tendered their president, Lyon Cohen, a dinner and dance Monday, May 7, to celebrate his sixtieth birthday and twenty-fifth year of administration at the community hall of the Synagogue now on Kensington Avenue. After proposing the toast to the King, the Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz, chairman, said the secret of Mr. Cohen's success was his wife who had all the cares of keeping her house in order while her husband attended to those of the house of Israel. The presentation of a grandfather clock was made by J. Levinson, vice-president, on behalf of the congregation, also an illuminated address. He said Mr. Cohen was carrying out work begun by his father, Lazarus Cohen. Lyon Cohen traced the growth of their synagogue fifty years ago from its small beginnings to the present well appointed headquarters. He recalled that in 1886 they moved to McGill College Avenue and he was one of the Sunday school teachers, relinquishing this position to become president of the congregation. Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz occupied the pulpit in 1905. Larger and more commodious premises were needed to accommodate the increasing membership and in 1922 the present structure on Kensington Avenue was dedicated as a fitting memorial to his father and the other pioneers responsible for its phenomenal growth. He paid tribute to Dr. Abramowitz and to Mrs. Cohen for her devotion to the synagogue.

Among those present were Barney Albert, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alexandor, Mr. and Mrs. P. Abbey, Dr. and Mrs. H. Abramowitz, Misses F. and M. Auerbach, Mr. and Mrs. M. constitutions of synagogues be made so that women should be eligible to occupy synagogue offices. She pointed out how significant the contribution of woman to the synagogue is and how unfair it was to give her work and responsibilities while denying to her the right to administrative positions. We sympathize very much with her appeal.

We know of no reason why in an age of emancipation of woman, the synagogue should retain ancient oriental modes, which put woman in a secondary place. When women have been granted the ballot, the right to enter the professions, and when women have succeeded in industry and commerce and have dissipated the old bugaboo that they were intellectually inferior, we do not know why religious organizations should persist in denying to them the rights that they have in every other phase of life. Is it because of the conservative character of religious institutions who too often are the last to yield to the march of new thought?

But the speaker at the convention did not ask for enough. She asked merely for representation on the business staff of a synagogue. She pleaded for legal emancipation. But what of spiritual emancipation? Why should the synagogue in its religious treatment of woman retain the ancient philosophy, which regard her as an inferior? Why should enlightened and cultured women be denied religious privileges which are available for the most stupid and illiterate of men? Why in orthodox Judaism should there be a ceremony of confirmation (bar-mitzvah) only for men? Why should only men be called to handle the scrolls and to read from the Torah, and to receive Aliyahs? Why in an age of equality should women be ignored in the constitution of a religious quorum (minyan)? Why should the women be segregated into the female ghettoes of the synagogue? The speaker in Chicago demanded the right to hold office—the right to a basis of business equality with men in the synagogue. She should have asked for spiritual equality. She should have demanded all religious rights and privileges as she has assumed responsibilities. Women should be made eligible to constitute a minyan, to be bar-mitzvah or bas-mitzvah. All the old oriental disabilities should be removed. True emancipation of woman in the synagogue means not only the right to hold office, but the right to speak to God on the same terms of intimacy as man.

What the women of orthodox synagogues are beginning rightfully to demand, has long been accorded to women of reform synagogues. There they have all rights and privileges. They may hold office, and in many synagogues they do hold office. They may sit anywhere at all in the synagogue. They are confirmed. In other words, they have been given complete equality. Again the reform synagogues have blazed the trail and have been the pioneers. And the orthodox and the conservative groups, though they criticise reform, are slowly adopting reform attitudes and practices. Let them continue to attack! We cannot forget that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

MAXWELL GOLDSTEIN—SIXTY-FIVE

Mr. Maxwell Goldstein, K.C., Honorary President of Emanu-El, will celebrate his sixty-fifth birthday on Sunday. Needless to say that Mr. Goldstein is one of the outstanding Jewish personalities in our community. Possessed of unbounding humility, he never cares to be in the limelight. He ever tries to keep off stage. But ever is he found working unceasingly in behalf of Israel behind the scenes. We know of no other Jew in Montreal who is blessed with such breadth of vision and of mind. We are fortunate in having such a one in our midst. And on this, his sixty-fifth birthday, we extend to him our congratulations and felicitations.

"THE TAGEBLATT"

"The Jewish Daily News" is no more! This strict orthodox publication, read for over forty years by Yiddish-speaking Jews, went out of existence. And we regret it. For the "Tageblatt" in its policy always represented traditional Judaism as taught and practised by strict, observant Jews. It did not make compromises. It was a classical Jewish daily. We have a suspicion that the "Tageblatt" has been losing out. After all, Jews born in America do not, as a rule, read the Yiddish papers. The number of Jewish immigrants coming at the present hour to the United States are few. Hence it is difficult to make especially a conservative Yiddish daily pay under the circumstances. But the "Tageblatt" did serve Judaism and the Jewish cause in its individual manner. We do regret that it is to be read no more.

WOMEN AND THE UNITED SYNAGOGUE CONVENTION

Judging from the newspaper reports nothing Jewishly startling was brought about by the convention of the United Synagogue held recently in Chicago. The sighs and cries of chaotic Jewish life of past years have been rehearsed and repeated. No constructive programme was offered. No new Jewish note was struck. No outstanding personality arose to point the way to a reconstructed Jewish life in the western hemisphere. But the convention does mark a step forward in its endorsement of the emancipation of Jewish womanhood. It declared itself in permitting women to be members of congregational boards. Perhaps in a few years it will also chime in with Liberal Judaism in permitting the "woman to participate in the minyon." We wonder why the leaders of the United Synagogue still retain in the prayer-book the following: "Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, who hast not made me a woman." We, too, can explain it. We, too, can employ pilpul and midrash to explain away this prayer. But in reality such a benediction can no longer be pronounced by a man of the present generation. Perhaps the next conference of the conservatist will introduce more reforms. Time will tell.

BOOK WEEK

Rabbi Felix Mendelssohn, of Chicago, suggested last year that the week of Lag B'Omer (May 4-11 this year) should be a Jewish Book Week. Splendid. We ought during this week take stock of our Jewish libraries. We wonder how many Jewish homes have at least a dozen books of vital Jewish interest. Parents ought to insist that their sons and daughters acquaint themselves with Jewish literature. For we are the people of the book and the book has ever given life and light unto us. May we love the Torah-book and less the cheque-book.

When you build your first home

WHILE you watch the growth, from blue-prints to reality, of your first home—only you can truly know the thrill. The joy of planning every detail, the pride of ownership in every board and brick; like but deeper than the thrill of the first circus, the first day of school, the first bank account.

You want the reality to be as perfect as the dream. "For plumbing," you say "Crane; if we can only afford it." You can. You need not hesitate. Though the Crane reputation for quality has created an impression of higher price, the fact is that a Crane installation rarely costs more.

In the wide variety of Crane fixtures are styles for the most modest as well as the most elaborate homes. No matter what you wish to pay, Crane can supply you with gracefully designed, dependable materials, embodying the Crane standard of quality. You can see the latest types of fixtures, valves, and fittings at the nearest Crane Exhibit Rooms. You will not be asked to buy, since Crane materials are sold only through responsible plumbing contractors.

Editorial

It must be remembered that this year the opposition has the support of some of the best elements of American Zionism. It is no accident that the Hadassah organization is in sympathy with the opposition and in disagreement with the Lipsky administration. Prima facie there must be real cause for dissatisfaction with the Lipsky regime.

The only unfortunate feature of the conference was the fact that it came about at the time when the United Palestine appeal was in full swing. It is conceivable that its focussing of attention on the faults of the administration has lent colour to the excuses of some people who are anxious to find reasons for not giving to Zionist funds. But then it so happens that the convention where the battle is to be fought out is to take place in a very short time. And if the opposition was to organize for the convention, it could not delay the preparations much longer.

It is a trite saying in democratic politics that "a government is as strong as its opposition." We hope there will be a strong opposition at the Pittsburg convention to raise the standard of the so-called government. And it is sometimes very salutary for a government to turn into an opposition, and an opposition to become the government.

SHE WASN'T PREPARED FOR SUCH A LONG STAY

Mrs. Levinski, who lives on a farm, came to visit her brother in the big city. Wishing to show her city life, he took her to a theatre. As they sat in their seats waiting for the show to start, Mrs. Levinski with rapt attention read the programme. Pretty soon she put her hand to her forehead and exclaimed:

"Hey, look David, it says here that the second act is a year later! Have we got time to wait that long?"

every friday

As the plot thickens news of the Zionist rumpus becomes increasingly interesting. The objective in sight now is the dethronement of Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, and this will be attempted by parliamentary procedure at the forthcoming Zionist convention, as a result of revelations made and action taken at the Z.O.A. Reorganization Conference held Sunday, April 29, in Washington. Judge Julian W. Mack, chairman of the conference, touched on the affairs of the Z.O.A. only and criticism of the Jewish Agency and Weizmann was not permitted as being outside the scope of the conference.

A manifesto, addressed to the Zionists of America, and passed with only three dissenting votes out of about 125, contained an indictment of the present Zionist Administration which calls a spade a spade. It was presented by Professor Felix Frankfurter, of Harvard University. This manifesto says that: "Truth compels the registration of the fact that the present Administration has brought the Zionist Organization of America to a condition of disorganization both moral and material." It charges that the administration has been guilty of bad conduct with regard to the American Zion Commonwealth, the Palestine Securities, and of failure to remit monthly contributions to the Palestine budget, failure to assist constructively the economic policy in Palestine and failure to utilize available resources. It says that the present incompetent administration must be replaced.

M. A. Zeldin, former director of the United Palestine Appeal campaign in New York, made these charges: For the past two years the Administration diverted $500,000 from the United Palestine Appeal to the Zion Commonwealth, a private company. Publication expenditures for the "New Palestine" and "Dos Yiddishe Folk" are mounting from year to year. The Administration has manipulated incomes diverting money for the Appeal to the Z.O.A. as dues. These charges of Zeldin are not entirely new, as he made some of them at the Atlantic City convention in 1927.

Lawrence Berenson, who, with Samuel Rosensohn, resigned from the Administrative Committee because they said Lipsky tried to undermine their efforts to balance the budget, made direct charges against Lipsky. He said that Lipsky had endorsed a note for the Zion Commonwealth for $285,000, "without the knowledge, without the authority, without the approval of anybody of the Zionist Organization of America." The Zion Commonwealth, against which bankruptcy proceedings have been filed in Palestine, has liabilities amounting to nearly two million dollars and assets of nearly a half million in outstanding accounts and land of undetermined value. Berenson said that, following Zeldin's charges at the Atlantic City convention, he (Berenson) Lindheim and Rosensohn were invited, to become members of the committee to help clean up the financial difficulties of the organization and try to restore the confidence of the Zionists of the country. He said: "One of the first things we did was to create a thing theretofore unknown to the organization, a balanced budget whereby the organization could never spend or create an invented necessity for sums in excess of the budget. We found the organization with a deficit of $175,000, the large part of which had been created under the leadership of Mr. Lipsky in the year or two prior to the Atlantic City convention. That budget is exclusive of guarantees, it is an actual deficit of the organization itself. In the creation of the balanced budget a reduction of subsidies and elimination of compensation to favoured individuals was found necessary." (Can this mean graft?) Scandal with regard to the note on the Central Mercantile Bank of New York for $285,000, which Lipsky endorsed for the Zionist Commonwealth, includes this additional information from Berenson's address to the conference: When land speculation in Palestine was rife, Lipsky endorsed the Zion Commonwealth as a Zionist Institution. He ran editorials in Zionist publications and was largely responsible for inducing American purchasers to make deposits for the acquisition of lands. The United Palestine Appeal was compelled to advance in cash on account of the Commonwealth the sum of $320,000, which was intended for Palestine by the donors; also an additional sum of $125,000 of Appeal money raised for Palestine and diverted in an effort to pull the Commonwealth out of difficulty. Berenson said that the United Palestine Appeal had found it necessary to advance this money because criticism was so great and feeling among purchasers so high over the critical situation of the Commonwealth, that the whole Appeal was endangered and the collapse of the entire Zionist Organization was threatened.

As to the publication from the conference of the above details, Judge Mack said: "We have been silent long enough." In his keynote address he mentioned the existing sentiment of discontent and the necessity for a complete housecleaning to restore the confidence of the public. He said: "The primary essential to that frank discussion which alone can effectuate the much-needed reforms in our work is a convention in June of wisely selected but uninstructed delegates, delegates not hand-picked by this or that official of the organization pledged to him and to his personal advancement, but men and women free from any ties except those of conscience and the welfare of Zionism."

This is to let you know what has happened so far. Meanwhile, what does an uninstructed delegate look like? And what is so rare as the day in June when this Zionist convention opens on it? f.f.c.

PURITY FLOUR

RECIPE FOR SAVARIN

Soak one cake of compressed yeast in a little lukewarm water or milk. Put the yeast in a cup, add two tablespoons of lukewarm water, pinch of salt and one tablespoon of sugar, stir well with a spoon and set back of the stove to rise. Rub one-half cup of butter to a cream, add one-third cup of powdered sugar and stir constantly in one direction. Add the yolks of four eggs, one at a time, and the grated peel of a lemon. Sift two cups of Purity Flour into a bowl, make a depression in the centre of the flour, pour in the yeast and one cup of lukewarm milk. Stir and make a light batter of this. Add the creamed butter and eggs, stir until it forms blisters and leaves the bowl clean; one-half cup of dark raisins, one-half cup of pounded almonds and a little citron, cut up very fine, and last the stiff beaten whites of the eggs. Fill your cake forms which have been well greased, set in a warm place to rise until double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Fill the centre with whipped cream and serve with rum sauce.

Cut away section of a Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire showing a single cord greatly magnified and unstretched into fifteen smaller cords composed of a great many little fibres. By means of the exclusive Firestone Gum-Dipping process, every fibre is insulated with rubber which prevents internal friction

Why Firestone Tires Give You Most Miles Per Dollar

The greatest enemy to tire life is not the harsh grind of city streets or rough roads but heat which is created inside the tire by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber causing blowouts and tire failures.

The exclusive Firestone Gum-Dipping process prevents internal heat. Every fibre of every cord is insulated and impregnated with rubber, which prevents internal friction and at the same time binds the cords together by a stronger union of rubber, thus giving greater strength and flexibility to the tire.

Take advantage of the Gum-Dipping process to lower your tire costs this year. Your local Firestone Dealer not only supplies you with these better tires that cost no more, but also gives the better service that enables you to benefit from every extra mile built in at the factory.

What to look for in buying a Refrigerator

DON'T buy a refrigerator on its looks alone. Make sure that it is soundly constructed, well insulated and scientifically designed for proper air ciculation. See that it has the proper food chamber and ice chamber capacity for the size of your family.

Have a good refrigerator, keep the ice chamber well filled with ice, and you will get the full benefit of all the ways in which ice saves.

We will gladly advise you in regard to the selection of a refrigerator.

Mrs. David Gordon was hostess at a musicale and tea, Tuesday, at her home on June Street, to members of Hadassah and their friends. The decorations were carried out in blue and white. About thirty new members were enrolled.

H. Singer and Lou Goldsmith have returned from a motor trip to the Imperial Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Myers are leaving May 22 for the east. They will visit Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Montreal, and Halifax.

Among those entertaining for Mrs. B. Myers, who will leave shortly for a trip east, are Mesdames David Gordon, Max Levine, Morris Myers and Sons.

N. A. Jaseby has returned from Montreal, New York and other points east.

The engagement is announced of Miss Francis Genser, daughter of Mrs. Adele Genser and the late Mr. Max Genser, to Dr. Samuel Hettler, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hettler, of Los Angeles.

Born April 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Myers, a daughter, Elaine Lillian.
